

Duke Street - London

Year 2007

The prime location of these offices - less than 1 mile from Buckingham Palace - justified the development of a system with additional "wow" factor. There was very little space available in the existing building structure and therefore Frenger's Polaris and Professor units were selected because of their ability to deliver high cooling duties with very little primary air supply. The multiservice chilled beams are finished to a specially-selected silver colour and LED lighting technology has been employed to add an extra "twinkle" to the installed product.

main contractor consulting engineer

*ELWHS
Meinhardt*